DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The listing of references in the specification is not a proper information disclosure statement. 37 CFR 1.98(b) requires a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office, and MPEP § 609.04(a) states, "the list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper." Therefore, unless the references have been cited by the examiner on form PTO-892, they have not been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-3, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Pettitt (5,163,819). Pettit teaches a reciprocating compressor comprising: a piston (22) which reciprocates in a compression space (14) of a cylinder (20) by being engaged with a reciprocating motor (col. 5 lines 20-27) and which has a suction path (46) connected to the compression space of the cylinder; a suction valve (48) mounted at an end surface portion of the piston (clearly seen in figure 2) to control gas suction by opening and closing the suction path of the piston; a discharging valve (54) assembly mounted at a discharge side (56) of the cylinder to control gas discharge by opening and closing the compression space; and an adhesion preventer (47) positioned at a contact portion between the end portion surface of the piston and the suction valve to minimize adhesion of the piston and the suction valve due to oil by reducing a contact area between the piston and the suction valve. The adhesion preventer is provided at an end portion surface of the piston and that suction valve and comprises a groove (clearly seen in figure 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 4-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Pettitt in view of Kikuchi et al. (5,380,176). Pettitt teaches the claim limitations as shown above, but fail to teach the adhesion preventer having a groove (241b) with a depth of about 20-200 micrometers (col. 6 lines 31-35) and an oil back flow preventing protrusion (241c) is provided at the end portion of the suction path located at a front surface of the piston.

6. Kikuchi et al. teach an adhesion preventer having a groove (241b) with a depth of about 20-200 micrometers (col. 6 lines 31-35) and an oil back flow preventing protrusion (241c) is provided at the end portion of the suction path located at a front surface of the piston. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the suction valve assembly taught by Pettitt to incorporate a depth of the said groove to be 150 micrometers and also to include a protrusion provided at the end portion of the suction path as a means of eliminating noise due to resonant vibration, as taught by Kikuchi et al. (col. 6 lines 31-34).

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

- Scheldorf et al. (5,203,686) teach a rotary compressor with a span type discharge valve.
- Jang (5,601,118) teaches a discharge valve apparatus of a compressor incorporating a protrusion at the exit of the gas pathway.
- Unger (6,247,901) teaches a reciprocating compressor utilizing valved pistons with suction valves at the end portions of the pistons.
